Write the précis of the passage given below :

After the Second World War, there have been dramatic changes in the political and social order of mankind. The decade of the 50s was dominated by the theme of liberty. One by one several former colonies and dependencies emerged as independence states. The decade of the 60s was dominated by the quest of development. The less developed countries of the world formulated plans to catch up with the advanced industrialized countries of the world. In the decade of the 70s, alongside developments, demand for equality began to articulate in several areas. One of its major manifestations was a new gender assertion by women who constituted one half of the world. Feminism emerged as a powerful movement which could not be wished or ridiculed. The basic demand of feminism was simple, equality. The movement sought to eradicate the scaly prejudices that had immobilized women in several spheres of activity.
